Dear Mr. Frewin:

When your letter arrived Mr. Weisberg was preparing to enter hospital so I am replying in his stead.

On your question about Sam Giancana and any potential bearing on the assassination, Harold says you are wrong. He has found nothing to substantiate any such supposition.

On the Tony Summers book, reviews here were uncritical whether they were favorable or unfavorable, and there were both.

I hope you get the information you are requesting from Mary Ferrell. She has a great store of information.

Harold's surgery was this morning and I have not yet had a report on it. We can only assume that it progressed as anticipated and that he now has to wait out his convelescence, which I suspect will be harder on him than the surgery.

Thank you for your good wishes.

Sincerely,

Lillian Weisberg
